

FENG SHUI CONSULTATION

Material needed before your assessment

Prepare a Personal Floor Plan & Bio

a. If a professional floor plan is unavailable, hand-sketch your floor plan (not to scale) on letter-sized paper. Draw each floor on a separate page. Clearly mark the front door, label and draw each room, show the swing of all doors, and indicate window locations. Include all major furniture pieces, such as the bed (mark where you sleep), stove, desk (mark where you sit), appliances, etc. If there are multiple occupants, label each occupant's bedroom or office. If you have a house, sketch the lot's shape on a separate page, showing the house's position on the lot, driveway, garage, pool, shed, and other features. Photos and videos are acceptable to send.

b. Write a short bio (overview) and date of birth. The bio should reflect what is going on in your life for the last 3 to 6 months related to health, finances, relationships, career, family, or other areas of concern, or simply state a theme and intentions you would like to work on. At the top of the bio, put your full name, address, and date of birth. Include the full name of each family member and their date of birth. Bio may be typed or handwritten.

Keep a copy of the floor plan and bio to take notes and mark suggestions during the Consultation.

*** Please email material at least five days before your appointment.

Red Envelope Tradition

The Red Envelope Tradition has been passed down through the ages and serves as a vital element in the spiritual aspect of the Consultation. It honors the Black Hat Tantric Buddhist (BTB) Feng Shui lineage by facilitating the exchange of energy and sacred information while also contributing your power and success to this profound wisdom.

For an in-person consultation, please prepare one Red envelope with a single dollar and have it ready at the conclusion of the visit. Red envelopes can be of any size, whether traditional Chinese bought from Amazon or at an office or art supply store.

The Red envelope is included in the virtual session fee.

Terms & Conditions

- A 72-hour notice is requested if you need to reschedule.
- For an in-person consult, please have payment and the Red envelope ready before the visit and allow at least three hours of uninterrupted time for the assessment.
- For virtual consultations, no refunds are given after the Client submits the material, as the Consultant must prepare for the assessment in advance. Thank you for your understanding.
